Combi Blinds

The Combi Blinds combine alternate panels of opaque and translucent fabrics into two layers of fabrics, rolled up into one big piece of blind. As you pull the blinds up and down, these panels will glide over each other seamlessly.

This innovative invention gives you flexible control of the light and privacy level in a room, effectively combining the features of day + night curtains and roller blinds. We'd like to call the combi blinds a 3-in-1 blinds too.

VERTICAL BLINDS

Vertical Blinds

Vertical blinds are vertical lengths of fabric that are clipped to a sliding track at the top and operated with a plastic wand or chain. These pieces of fabric (also known as louvres or slats) are joined together by weights to ensure the louvres are evenly weighted across the length of the track, no matter if they're fully extended across the track or nestled together to let extra light inside. The louvres are also joined together by a chain at the bottom which works to stabilise the blinds.

While the construction of these blinds seems straightforward, they're designed to allow ultimate control over privacy and light in any environment. The vertical louvres tilt and turn depending on how much of a gap the user wants, plus they can also be drawn back completely to enable more light into a room. That makes them a great option for any space where control is paramount but where good design is also crucial.

Vertical blinds are different from standard blinds in that they open from side to side rather than up and down.

WOODEN BLINDS

Wooden Blinds

Wooden blinds are made up of rows of horizontal wooden slats. The slats are linked by a pulley cord that allows them to be rotated to almost 180 degrees. When raised, the slats gather neatly at the top of your window. When fully lowered, they can be rotated to block sunlight or angled for privacy. While the construction of these blinds seems straightforward, they're designed to allow ultimate control over privacy and light in any environment. The vertical louvres tilt and turn depending on how much of a gap the user wants, plus they can also be drawn back completely to enable more light into a room. That makes them a great option for any space where control is paramount but where good design is also crucial.

Wooden blinds have the unique ability to obscure views from outside whilst still allowing sunlight and fresh air to flow into your home. The sturdy wooden slats also protect against shadows and outlines, which is particularly important for rooms that are overlooked by neighbours or passers by. This makes them a great choice for living rooms and bedrooms.

ROLLER BLINDS

Roller Blinds

Roller blinds are a popular choice amongst homeowners, favoured for their attractive and fresh design. They are very versatile and can suit and enhance any type of interior décor. Roller blinds are also very functional when it comes to controlling (or blocking out) light, providing privacy and good insulation.

2-types of Roller Blinds

SKYLIGHTS BLINDS

Skylight blinds, also known as rooflight blinds

Skylights make for a beautiful feature, as well as providing an elegant solution for introducing more natural light into a room.

Benefits

1. Light Control
2. Manage Temperature
3. Easy to operate
4. Prevent furniture to fade

MOTORIZED BLINDS

A motorized blind means all you have to do is just flip a switch or push a button and watch your favorite blinds effortlessly open or close.

Benefits

1. Cordless Design Offers Maximum Safety for Children and Pets
2. Protect Your Furniture and Decor from the Sun
3. Push Button Control
4. Varied Control Options Include Wireless Switches, Remotes, and Apps

Motorized window blinds are operated a number of ways.

You can control your motorized blinds with either a wall-mounted wireless switch, a remote control or an app. It is wise to have a wall-mounted switch or remote on hand so anyone can adjust the motorized window blind when needed.

All our designs are authentic
Korean LOSA blinds and they go through thorough quality controls.
